Bringing Comedy To The Troops

Since 1992, Don Barnhart Entertainment has been performing and producing comedy shows for the US Military serving around the world.

Don Barnhart's Battle Comics - Comedy Tour features some of the top headlining comedians working today by going around the world to entertain the men and women serving overseas in the Armed Forces.

Picking up where Bob Hope left off, Barnhart himself, an award-winning comedian, was one of the first group of entertainers to go into Afghanistan during Operation Enduring Freedom and his group of performers are experienced in "performing in the field".

Don's experience as both a comedian, producer and tour manager is unparalleled.

By sponsoring a Battle Comics - World Tour For The Troops, your company's name, logo or product will be seen by some of the most appreciative and loyal audiences around the world.

Battle Comics are gearing up to go back into Afghanistan, Iraq and Southwest Asia in March of 2016 as well as Europe and The Pacific later in the year.

Please join us in supporting the troops by sponsoring a tour and bringing a piece of home to those dedicated Americans protecting and serving our country.

Comedy Shows Help To Save The Lives Of Soldiers By Lifting Morale

War and combat are one of the most stressful things a soldier will face and although they train for it, it's not always easy. Right now, we are seeing a huge increase in suicides for the soldiers and providing comedy shows for the troops is just one of the many ways our nation is trying to deal with this tragic issue.

It has been said, "Laughter is the best medicine". It also turns out that comedy can be a preventative medicine as well. For years, stand up comedians have been entertaining the troops in war zones and on the front lines and Bob Hope really started it by showing the importance of bringing a piece of home to the men and women serving in the military.

Bryan "Bear" Patridge LTC, MP Commander agrees to the importance of humor, "It is a stress reliever. Combat zone or not, life for Soldiers is just plain tough at times. We have to be able to add some levity and not take ourselves so seriously all the time. Humor is and can be a common bond between the everyday Soldier and his leaders - regardless of rank".

When soldiers create a human connection with others the probability of suicide lowers. "These people are at war and it's really hard on them." said Brian S. Hornback, CMSgt, USAF. "Your simple act of gratitude, support and dedication to the men and women in the United States Military not only defines what makes our country so great but remind us of what we're fighting for".

Actors Christian Slater and Kal Penn recently stopped in during one of Barnhart's comedy tours to meet and greet the troops, shake hands and sign autographs.. Slater commented, "It's truly is an honor to be here".

Penn, best known from the "Harold And Kumar" movies talked with Barnhart after the tour. "I was totally blown away by the women and men out there who are serving so tirelessly. Hopefully we can do something else. I'm impressed with how involved you are."

"We all have a part to play. Some of the soldiers are truly amazed that we would come this far to do a show and take the time to visit with them. It shows them that America cares and they are not forgotten", added Barnhart.

"Often times, they just need something to connect them to home and these shows may be the factor to keep them going when things get tough. Even though I feel like the water boy on a Super Bowl team, I know we need to keep our team refreshed so they can do their jobs and come home to their friends and families".

SUPPORT THE TROOPS

By sponsoring a comedy tour, your company, brand or logo will be seen by thousands of men and women in the United States Armed Forces. Along with the good will your company will create, you'll be associated with your support of the troops and branded with the "All American" image.

EXPOSURE Your brand or logo will be featured on show banners, tee shirts, autograph cards, promotional giveaways, websites and more. We also have the unique ability to showcase your product to the men and women serving their country.

The print and news media are constantly running stories on the life of soldiers and having your logo displayed in these feel good stories will help to increase your products trust and likability. Many of the tours have been covered by CNN, Star & Strips, local/national media and the worldwide press.

NEW MEDIA Immediately following the show, the performers sign autographs and take pictures with the troops. Many of the soldiers stay in contact with their family and friends back home through the internet and post these pictures on their Facebook, Instagram and other social media accounts. Your product's logo will be seen by the soldiers family and loved ones at home.

JUMP RIGHT IN We are currently working in conjunction with Armed Forces Entertainment (AFE) and have a series of ongoing comedy tours but need more funding in order to continue.

WHAT'S THE DEAL? AFE can only do so many tours based on their fiscal budgets and with the help of sponsors like yourself, we can bring more entertainment to the troops.

Working with AFE, Don Barnhart Entertainment has the full support and clearance to get on and off the military installations along with the added sense of security should any problems arise. Your additional funding will help with securing logistics, talent and travel and depending on the level of sponsorship, your company brand or logo will be displayed on the show banner, autograph cards, tee shirts, websites and more...
